See Beyond, with different techniques, art materials, and perspectives, Danielle Higgs and Braxton Neilly showcase their different perspectives of life on the island.

Danielle's work focuses on uplifting people of color in a positive and bright environment, using colors that she's engulfed in daily on her home island. She does this while also sharing the good news that embodies true love, kindness, and growth. While her journey with The Good News progresses, her love, sympathy, and fascination with individuality also grows, how each person has their own facial features and their own demeanour while still being connected spiritually. While Danielle continues to dive into color and spirituality, Braxton Neilly walks the streets of Harbour Island, acknowledging the beauty in the mundane and in the vibrant culture within not just Harbour island but The Bahamas. The daily life of a local. The daily sunsets and sunrise. The daily walks hens take with their chicks. The daily strolls and naps cats and dogs have. With one click of a button, a moment is captured forever.

This is our home and to help welcome you here this exhibition will be held at a historical site, Round head where many decades ago cannons were used to help protect this little but strong island we call home today. Focused on the color blue which can symbolize a sense of peace and calmness and the occasional black and white that draws viewers closer to the culture of this small island. We look forward to seeing you on July 3rd at The Island Arts Gallery pop up Exhibition.
